4TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

MARKINGS: Questions, Quotations and Exclamations from Sr. Lois Buck

What do Catholic Schools Week, Ujamaa and St. Angela Merici, all have in common? The answer is the St. Aloysius Community.

Today is the beginning of Catholic Schools Week, where we recognize and celebrate the work that is happening in our school. We celebrate the accomplishments of our students, teachers, staff and parents who strive daily to follow the gospel values. Catholic schools all over the country will participate in open houses, masses, prayer services and a variety of events that focus on the values of catholic education.

Ujamaa means to work together to build and maintain our community, by supporting those who cannot do it alone. The Ujamaa awards are presented to students who are working hard in school to learn and follow the rules, whose parents are trying to provide a better life for their children. Thus, in the spirit of Ujamaa this scholarship supports these families both financially and spiritually to help build and maintain our community to prepare for the future.

Finally, St. Angela Merici (1474-1540), whose feast day we celebrate on January 27th, was an Italian religious educator who founded a company of religious women known as the "Ursulines". Angela, inspired by the spirit, believed that we were to look at our community, assess the needs in order to identify what must be done and then change to meet those needs. She also wrote that those who followed here had a greater need to serve than be served, thus the Ursuline Sisters of Cleveland have faithfully served the people of St. Aloysius for many years and continue to serve here as teachers, administrators and pastoral ministers.

The theme for Catholic Schools Week 2018 is "Learn. Serve. Lead. Succeed." I believe this is a common thread that ties all three together and presents a challenge to all of us. As members of this St. Aloysius community we must continue to support our young people and their families, be aware of those in need of spiritual, emotional or financial support, and serve one another following the gospel values in order to build, strength and maintain our community for the future.

Sr. Lois serves as the Director of our Preschool and After School programs.
