12TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY - JUNE 21, 2026

Sr. Mary Jean's Column

A number of years ago, I read an article in Today's Catholic Teacher magazine that still resonates with me today.

On the cover was a young boy sitting at his desk with his arms crossed and his chin on his arms as he gazed intently in the distance. The caption read, "When you didn't know, I was watching you."

The article inside went on to explain how as a child, the author watched his teacher every day in his classroom and never told her what he silently learned from her.

He described how he saw her treat children who were struggling to learn with patience and understanding.

He described how he saw her devotion to prayer whenever the class prayed together or attended Mass.

He described how he saw how hard she worked to create lessons that were engaging and enjoyable while they still taught essential skills and facts.

He described how she understood and never judged students or parents from poorer families.

I think of this article often when I reflect on my own life and ask myself, "What am I teaching to those who are watching me?"

Or we could ask, what are we as adults in America today teaching to those who are watching us?

Are we teaching that we are a nation who values peace over conflict?

Are we teaching that we are a nation who equally respects all women and men of various ethnicities and religious beliefs and sexual identities?

Are we a nation who welcomes the immigrant as we have done for centuries before?

Who are we as a church? A Parish?

Are we adults who so strongly value our discipleship that it inspires other family members, both young and old to worship with us on Sundays?

Are we adults who consistently practice integrity in our workplaces and with our families?

Are we adults who openly and bravely stand for gospel values when our coworkers or neighbors engage in hateful speech against immigrants or people of color?

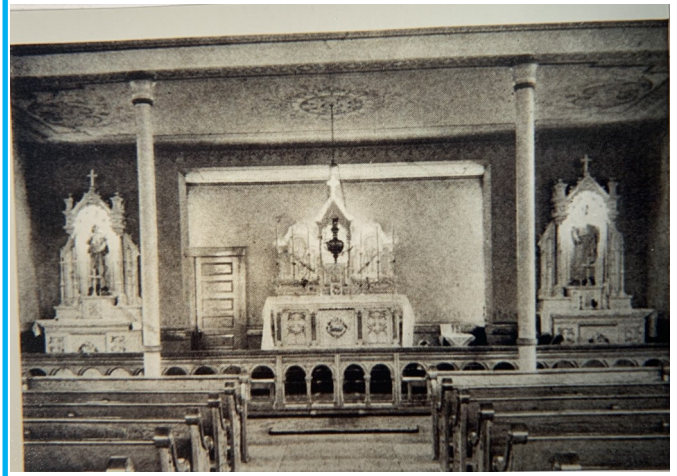

Who are we? Who am I? What is the world learning from watching us?
